The Manamater Store. Stormy-Day Reflections

THE fin-de-siecle advertisement of a dry goods store is not remarkable for the delicacy of its self-appreciation. Modesty and advertisement combine as water and oil. It is a combination which we endeavor to effect in our store news, but this morning you must forgive us if a distinct note of triumph booms as a thorough-bass through the placid melody of our mercantile song.

It is a season of "first-views" and exhibitions. We have just conducted two,—millinery and costumes, -- and to-morrow we shall announce another, which is another story to be told in its own place. The results of these exhibitions already held have been not only such as to inspire and encourage us, but to convince us of our position. A year ago we said,—"Our public is finding us." It is justly a joyful day when we can with justice say, as we say now,—"Our public has found us." If additional proof were needed, it was given yesterday. It was not a day conducive to large mercantile audiences, so far as weather conditions went. Therefore, the big, bright store humming with business was a true and perfect evidence of what we'd like to call, with all modesty, intrinsic attraction.

In the mercantile arena the final "Habet" is never spoken. The struggle is unceasing and success but brings new duties. Our Public having found us, it is now our duty and delight to make it glad that it did so. We'll try.

A CATALOGUE OF NEW GOODS WE HAVE NEITHER TIME NOR SPACE FOR RHODOMONTADE

These offerings could be romantically extended over many pages . . . Items of a single line, could, with high-flown descriptions, interspersed with adjectives and illustrative cuts, be made to occupy a column . . . Statements are purposely brief and lucid. While circumstances attending purchase might often be interesting, goods so quickly come and go that the telling of the story is a detail quite unnecessary.

GOODS AND PRICES SPEAK FOR THEMSELVES.
